

BANQUET TO THE BIGGEST SHRINER

Head of the Order Is Guest of El Maida Temple at Banquet.

It was El Maida's treat, Thursday night at the Shrine banquet, in the Sheldon, in honor of imperial potentate John F. Treat, of Fargo, N. D. He was here for the official inspection of the El Paso Shrine. He was accompanied by the official visitation committee, composed of past imperial potentate Lou B. Winsor, of Detroit; W. S. Brown, imperial treasurer, and Benjamin W. Rowell, imperial recorder.

George H. Green, past imperial potentate, arrived Thursday from Dallas to meet the imperial potentate and his party. He was accompanied by John G. Hunter, recorder of Hella temple, at Dallas, and the father of El Maida Shrine in El Paso. They are the best known Shriners in Texas, and are among the prominent Shriners of the country, and were given almost as big an ovation as the imperial potentate.

Accompanying the imperial potentate was Max William G. Bell, past potentate of the Winnipeg, Canada, temple, and an officer in the Canadian army. Charles W. Davis, high priest and prophet of Hella temple at Dallas, was also here. H. F. Bates, of Aleppo temple, Boston, also accompanied the imperial party. De Witt Thomas, of Fort Worth, came over with the Dallas bunch.

Speeches were made by imperial potentate Treat, past imperial potentates Winsor and Green and the other distinguished Shriners present. Illustrative potentate T. C. Lee, acted as toastmaster. The fourth cavalry orchestra furnished the music for the banquet, which was served by Ernest Morrow, of El Maida Shrine, in the main dining room of the Sheldon hotel.

CERTAINTY OF DEATH IS SUBJECT OF TALK

At the revival meeting at the Westminster Presbyterian church Thursday night, Rev. John E. Abbott preached on Heb. 9:27, "As it is appointed unto man once to die."

He said: "Whatever else man may or may not know, all men know and lament the shortness of life and the certainty of death. The literature of all ages shows this. All men have said, with Horace, 'In death's capacious urn every name is shaken; the high and the low alike come to the same inevitable end.'"

"This text does not turn our thoughts to the somber scenes of death, but rather to the life and the ends for which it is spent. The first question that presents itself in view of the shortness of life is, 'How am I discharging my duty to myself?' We ought to lay hold upon the things most worth while. Jesus said Mary had chosen that good part which should not be taken away from her. Religion is the only thing that we can take with us to the other side of death."

"How are we meeting our duty to our fellow men? We would drop all of our petty suspicions and hatreds of one another if we remembered that we all soon will die. No man can face the certainty of death without facing his relationship to the Christ of God. His incarnation, life and crucifixion lay a threefold claim upon our lives. It is the highest relationship."

"Children in a family cannot be good children and repudiate father and mother. So no man can be a moral man and repudiate the highest relationship of life. You've got to face all these obligations of life as you face the certainty of death."
